ELIZABETHTOWN CONVENTION

Bull Moosers of Fourth District Meet.

E. R. Bassett Selected Progressive Candidate for Congress.

(Special to The Republican.)

Elizabethtown, Ky., Aug. 4, 1912.—Pursuant to a call by the National Progressive Party and also in pursuance of a call by the Hon. Leslie Combs, member of the provisional committee as aforesaid for the State of Kentucky, the Progressives of the Fourth Congressional District of Kentucky assembled in convention at Elizabethtown, Ky., August 4, 1912. The convention was called to order at 10:30 a. m. by the Hon. C. M. Barnett, of Hartford. Upon motion and second Hon. G. W. Stone, of Letchfield, Ky., was declared elected chairman of the convention and J. M. Williams, secretary. A roll call of the counties in the district represented except Bullitt and Taylor. All counties with these two exceptions held conventions and selected delegates. Upon motion of W. F. Nelkirk, the roll of counties was called and each county presented its member on the following committees: Town, Credentials, Rules and order of business, Permanent organization and Resolutions. After the selection of the committees on motion the convention adjourned until 4 o'clock p. m. At 1 o'clock p. m. the convention reassembled and the chairman called for reports of political conditions in the various counties in the district and encouraging reports were made from all counties. The committee on rules and order of business then reported as follows: 1st, the election of two delegates and of two alternates to represent the Fourth District in the National Convention at Chicago August 5, 1912; 2nd, the election of a member of the State Central Committee for the Fourth Congressional District; 3rd, the recommendation of a suitable candidate for elector for the Fourth Congressional District and also for assistant elector; 4th, Recommendation of a candidate for Congress for the Fourth Congressional District.

The committee on credentials then reported as follows: We, the committee on credentials respectfully report that there are no contests from any county and that all the credentials presented by each county are regular. The committee on permanent organization respectfully recommended that the temporary organization of this convention be made permanent.

Committee on resolutions reported as follows: First, we approve the call for this convention and also the call which has been issued for a National convention to convene in Chicago August 5 to nominate candidates for President and Vice President of the United States; Second, we denounce the so-called nomination of President Taft at Chicago as fraudulent, binding upon no one, and we call upon the voters of this district regardless of past party affiliations to join with us in support of candidates upon a true progressive platform and upon whose title will rest no stain; Third, we condemn the present basis of representation in the National conventions and declare for the change which will make the ratio conform to the votes cast in the several states at the preceding general election; Fourth, the people are the Government and the source of all wealth, hence they should govern in fact, as well as in Nation State, County and Municipality; that this right may be exercised free from political bosses and convention thieves; we favor the primary in all contests from the office of President down. Fifth, We favor amendments to the Federal constitution making President, Vice President, United States Senators and all Federal Judges elective by direct vote of the people. Sixth, We further declare for graduated inheritance and income taxes; for the initiative and referendum; repeal of officials, reasonably safeguarded; for a working-man's compensation act; for abolition of all needless offices which unnecessarily tax the people; a gradual payment of the tariff downward so as not to effect the business nor effect good wages for the working men and fair prices for all farm products; and for such other general reforms as in the spirit of the time demands; for a physical valuation of railroads, telephone and telegraph properties doing interstate commerce; for governmental control of our National resources, the same be farmed out in the interest of the people and royalties paid in the treasury rather than exploited by rich syndicates for private property. Seventh, Delegates and alternates chosen by this convention are instructed to vote for, and use all honorable means to secure the nomination of that great champion of the rights of the common people, Theodore Roosevelt, for President of the United States at the Chicago Convention, August 12-15.

We recommend the adoption of the Moose Head as the party emblem in Kentucky.

After the adoption of the resolutions the chairman called for nominations of candidates for delegates and the following names were placed in nomination before the convention, namely: A. A. Pearl, Clarence Redmon, Jesse R. Eckridge and W. S. Tinsley. The vote resulted in W. S. Tinsley and Jesse R. Eckridge being elected.

Nominations for alternate delegates then declared in order and the following names were placed before the convention, namely, M. J. Benkeft, J. W. Meyers, Woodson Lewis, and L. C. Hubbard. Vote being taken resulted in J. W. Meyers, and Woodson Lewis being elected as alternates.

Hon. W. F. Nelkirk was unanimously elected as State Central Committeeman from the Fourth District. Clarence Redmon, of La Rue county, was recommended for assistant elector. Hon. E. R. Bassett, of Litchfield, was unanimously recommended as the Progressive candidate for Congress from the Fourth District.

On motion the action of the Louisville Herald in supporting the Progressive ticket, was endorsed. Convention then adjourned.

NEGRO REAPS REWARD FOR HIS AID TO TAFT

Discharged Brownsville Soldier Given Job And May Be Voted Back Into Army.

Washington, Aug. 3.—By an executive order of President Taft, Mirgo Sanders, who was a sergeant of the colored infantry regiment discharged from the Army without honor when several companies of the regiment likewise were discharged for participation in the Brownsville riots, today became a messenger in the classified service and went to work at the Interior Department at $70 a month. Recently Sanders took part as a saboteur in the Ohio primary fight between President Taft and Col. Roosevelt.

Representative Rodenburg, of Illinois, said today he would introduce in the House next week a bill to reinstate Sanders in the Army and permit his reenlistment at once.

When discharged Sanders had served twenty-six years and after another year's service would have been entitled to retirement at two-thirds pay and allowance. Later Mr. Rodenburg says he will introduce a bill for reinstatement of all the innocent soldiers discharged for participation in the Brownsville riots.

Wilson Not to Stump Country

Seagirt, N. J., Aug. 5.—Gov. Wilson will not make a general stump tour of the country in the interest of his presidential campaign, but will probably make a few speeches in desirable states. The governor made this announcement today.

"I will not stump the country," he said. "I have definitely determined upon that. I anticipate that I will make a few speeches during the campaign at times and places considered desirable by the campaign committee and myself. I assume that the speaking campaign, not necessarily mine but that of the organization, will begin about Sept. 1."

Kentucky Not Ungrateful.

Republicans may be ungrateful, but commonwealths are not. Kentucky is about to erect a monument to the memory of one of her citizens who first imported mint from Virginia.—Memphis News-Solmar.

ADAIR COUNTY COMMITTEEMEN

Republicans Quit in View of Theft For Taft.

Party in Hands of Thieves is Unqualified Charge They Made.

Columbia, Ky., Aug. 5.—Taft leaders in Kentucky were thrown into dismay today on receiving word sent out from this city that eight members of the Adair County Republican Committee had resigned from the body following the lead taken several days ago when Judge W. W. Jones, regularly elected chairman of the committee, tendered his resignation.

Resigning committeemen gave as their reason for quitting the body that the Republican party "is in the hands of thieves" and that it "misrepresents the wishes of the voters." The recent Chicago convention is described as "the most colossal steal known within the annals of history."

Their statement addressed to the secretary of the committee follows:

We, the undersigned members of the Adair County Republican Committee are not in sympathy with the conditions as they exist today in the Republican organization of the State and Nation—condemning in our minds and detesting in our souls the frauds recently practiced in the name of the Republican party at Chicago to force the nomination of Taft, when it was evident from Maine to California, from the lakes to the Gulf, in every State whose people had a chance to express themselves, that the choice of the Republicans for President was Theodore Roosevelt.

We have been Republicans all our lives and as long as the party stood for the liberty of the people and equality of all, a free ballot and a fair count, we were willing to do its battles even to the shedding of blood in defense of its principles. But when, as has been demonstrated by the Chicago Convention, its days of honesty and integrity of purpose are over, that it has now become the private property of political buccanniers who use its machinery to defraud the people of the right to make nominations, we feel that it is time to assert our manhood and protest with all the force we possess against what every right-thinking man knows was the most colossal steal known within the annals of history.

It is patent to any observer of the course of recent events that through the organization of the party was passed down the line to steal first County delegates—then in succession District and State delegations—and when this failed to secure enough delegates to defeat the choice of the party, Theodore Roosevelt, then did it become incumbent upon the National Committee to unseat legally elected delegates until with the aid of the rotten boroughs of the South they were enabled to give a fraudulent nomination to President Taft; and were it not for the fact that recent events have proven that the President was cognizant of the steal we might condone the crime to some extent and enshroud his personality with the mantle of charity, excusing his acceptance of the fraudulent nomination on the grounds of the methods employed. But almost each day since the convention has Mr. Taft been appointing to Federal office the chief perpetrators of this crime—so much so that when we scan the papers and see the name of an appointment to a post office or judgeship or other office, we naturally ask: "What did he steal?"

Briefly stated the party is in the hands of thieves, its organization misrepresents the wishes of its voters, its acts are revolutionary—repeatedly would reduce this Republic to a monarchy, destroy free government, the freedom of the press and eject from Government positions officials for the crime of less misdeeds.

Theodore Roosevelt is the nominee of the Republican party, but being deprived of the organization in this State and our determination to support him, coupled with the facts stated above, leads us to present you with our resignation as members of your committee to take effect at once. (Signed) J. C. Strange, South Columbia Precinct; J. T. Barber, West Columbia Precinct; Clem Burton, East Columbia Precinct; L. R. Chapp, Reley Precinct; Aquilla Darnell, Harmony Precinct; Frank Furkin, Elroy Precinct; C. C. Hindman, Milton Precinct; W. D. Kollmer, Cane Valley Precinct.

Roosevelt sentiment, always strong in the county, is growing in leaps and bounds.

Turley Residence Burns.

The Owensboro Inquirer Tuesday said: The handsome residence of T. J. Turley, located on the farm which he recently purchased from Ben J. Hiral, about two and one half miles south of Owensboro, on the Livermore road, was totally destroyed by fire about 8:30 o'clock this morning.

The supposition is that the fire originated from a defective flue. As soon as the fire was discovered all efforts were made to extinguish the flames, but they had gained such headway that it was only a short time before they had spread through the entire building, causing total destruction.

The house contained ten rooms and was worth about $3,000, covered partially by insurance. The house was furnished with some handsome furniture, including a piano valued at $600. Part of the furniture was saved. The furniture was valued at about $2,500, and was insured.

Crops in Montgomery Are Looking Fine.

Mt. Sterling, Ky., Aug. 2.—Crops in Montgomery county are looking fine, and the prospect for an excellent yield could not be improved upon. Tobacco has come out wonderfully, white corn, which is tasseling and earing, looks to be a bumper crop. The oats and hay crops, harvesting of which has just been completed, were as fine as for twenty years past and made an excellent yield. Wheat was fair and sold readily at $1 per bushel. With plenty of rain from now on to make crops the farmers of this section will be on a happy street.

FARMING PAYS CITY'S EXPENSES

Town in Washington Has $1,800 Profit From Hay Crop Alone.

Tacoma, Wash., Aug. 6.—Wilbur, the only town in the State of Washington, and probably the only one in the United States doing a regular farming business for profit, is now cutting a hay crop valued at $1,800. The city of Wilbur next year expects to pay all the city's administrative expenses with the farm profits, and if plans now made mature as expected, not only will Wilbur cease levying taxes for city government, but the city government will actually have dividends to pay the ordinary tax payers.

With park enthusiasts insisting that Wilbur prepare for the future the city bought 120 acres of land for a city park. Not having the money to improve this land as a park, the city allowed the land to stand idle for a year. Then part was improved as a fair grounds, but still there was land idle.

First a few acres were sowed in hay, then more, until at the present time it appears as if Wilbur was eventually to be as rich as any land owner and farmer in the State of Washington.

Sheep Shipments are Light.

According to the books of County Live Stock Inspector, Mr. L. D. Bennett, there were 4,000 head of sheep shipped from Ohio county in the year 1911. However, this year there has been a marked decrease in the shipment, and only 100 head have been shipped.

The decrease is thought to be due to the fact that many farmers sold all of their sheep last year on account of the short crops. Mr. Bennett says that many sheep raisers use the dipping process to keep off diseases, and he has not found any diseased sheep in the county.

First Water Melons in Hartford.

The first water melons of this season were brought to Hartford one day last week by Mr. Walter Kennedy, who lives near this city. He said that the prospects for the melon crop in this county this year were rather gloomy, on account of the heavy rains. Many people had fine prospects for a bumper crop, but the rains completely ruined the vines.

DETAILS GIVEN OF POLICE GRAFT

Full Confession Made by Jack Rose.

Gives Also Account of His Movements on Night of Rosenthal Murder.

New York, Aug. 7.—Police officials and gamblers were startled today by a report that Detective William J. Burns had been investigating graft conditions in New York for three months. It was stated that Burns opened a gambling house here with the intention of trapping a high politician who was suspected of sharing in the tribute levied upon the underworld. Burns, who arrived in this city yesterday from Baltimore, denied the story, as also did District Attorney Whitman.

Mr. Whitman said that Burns had been working in the Rosenthal case under his guidance and that he had full knowledge of Burns' movements. "These positively did not include the operation of a gambling house," the District Attorney declared.

With the lengthy written confession of "Bald Jack" Rose as a basis, private detectives went to work today to secure corroboration of Rose's story, in which he told in detail of his alleged relations with Police Lieutenant Becker as a collector of blackmail.

Rose handed his confession to Mr. Whitman last night just as the latter was leaving the West Side court prison, where Rose is confined. It is written in ink and covers thirty-eight pages of foolscap paper. Parts of it are at variance with the earlier statements made by the gambler, but Rose declares that the statement is the absolute truth and any different statements made earlier by him were inaccurate.

Rose tells in detail of the method he alleges Becker used in getting evidence against gambling houses, the keepers of which had refused to pay protection money to his agents. He tells how these racketeers were brought to terms speedily and of the amount of money he collected monthly.

More important than anything else, he furnished to District Attorney Whitman the names and address of twelve gambling house proprietors from whom he alleges he collected sums ranging from $500 to $2,000 a month, all of which, he says, he turned over to Becker.

These exchanges of money, Rose alleges, were made in his home at West 11th street, in the presence of his wife, and frequently in the presence of servants. The names of several of the servants are included in Rose's statement.

But Rose's statement is not confined exclusively to his relations with Becker as the latter's alleged collector. The final six pages of the confession are devoted to a detailed account of his movements on the night that Herman Rosenthal was shot to death in front of the Metropole Hotel.

He tells how he was in constant communication with Becker while at Harry Polk's house. Most of these communications, he says, were over the telephone. Others were through Sam Schapps. He tells of the visit of John W. Hart, Becker's first lawyer, to Polk's house, to see him, stating that Hart gained admission to the house by using a signal which had been agreed upon previously.

District Attorney Whitman is bending every effort today to secure identifications of "Whitney" Lewis and "Dago Frank" Crofesi as two of those who occupied the murder car the night that Herman Rosenthal was shot down and slain. William Shapiro, the chauffeur of the car, after looking the two suspects over tremblingly, told the public prosecutor that he could not identify them, Shapiro will be given another opportunity to identify the two men.

As another side development of the Rosenthal case, an attempt will be made by a citizens' committee, to determine what defects in the present scheme of municipal government have made police graft and the Rosenthal murder possible in New York city. It is the opinion of the committee that the present situation is the result of conditions which have been slowly corrupting the city.

Third Regiment K. S. G. Complemented.

The following official order has been received by Capt. DeWaele and complements the conduct and soldierly manner of the Third Regiment on the encampment at Annapolis, Md. Headquarters 3rd. Inf., K. N. G., Hopkinsville, Ky., August 6th, 1912. General Orders No. 4.

It is with pride and pleasure that the commanding officer desires to announce to this Regiment that the recent tour of duty at Annapolis, Md., July 21—August 5, was the most successful in the history of the Regiment. The officers of the regular army attached to this Regiment as Inspector-Instructors commended you for the prompt and efficient manner in which your work was done, and especially for the soldierly and gentlemanly conduct while in camp or on liberty in the city of Annapolis. The fact that the guard-house was empty and not a single man under arrest during the tour is significant of the effort put forth.

The citizens of your home stations should be proud of you, and the Commonwealth of Kentucky should be equally proud of the result of this tour. You have upheld the honor of the State and the Commanding Officer desires that every officer and man of the Regiment know that he deeply appreciates the splendid work and conduct.

By order of Colonel Henry A. G. CHAPMAN Capt. & Adj.

Roasts Baby in Oven.

Sterling, Ill., August 6.—In order that the baby might not interfere with its mother who was working nearby, the seven-year-old daughter of Mrs. Eliza Frankfather placed the infant on the door of an oven from which her mother had just taken a batch of bread. The red hot metal burned the infant so badly that it cannot recover.

SMART ALECK SOLDIER PULLS OFF STUNT

By Taking Shot at Section Foreman, Inflicting Painful Wound.

Owensboro, Ky., Aug. 5.—Henry Epley, of Epley station, Logan county, a section foreman of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad company, received a severe wound on the head this morning shortly after the special train carrying the soldiers from Annapolis, Md., left Russellville. When the train left Russellville, companies from Letchfield, Greenville, Calhoun, Livermore and Owensboro were aboard, and it is claimed that the shot was fired by some soldier listed with one of these companies.

Epley was in charge of a section crew who were at work on the road between Epley and Edwards, and as the train passed the men, a shot was fired from a blank cartridge by one of the soldiers leading out of the window. Epley was in such close range of the train that the powder and lead caused an ugly wound on his head, and for a while he was unconscious. The wounded man was taken back to Russellville to have his wounds dressed, and the train officials have already begun an investigation of the matter.

Never Missed Paper in Twenty-Four Years.

Mr. L. D. Bennett, of route 3, came to The Republican office Monday to renew his subscription to this paper. He has been a subscriber since the beginning of the paper twenty-four years ago and has remained on our list ever since. He holds the remarkable record of never missing a single copy in that time and he has therefore received over 1248 copies of The Republican.

WILL BUY THE OLD BOONE HOME

Part of Historic Structure
Still Stands.

House Constructed as a Home
and Fort Against Indian Outrages.

Philadelphia, August 5.—Two of the most interesting landmarks in the Schuylkill valley are the birthplace of Daniel Boone and the old Quaker meeting house where he attended services, and where some of his family are buried, in Exeter township, Berks county. Only a portion of the old house in which the famous pioneer first saw the light is standing, a larger structure having been built around it nearly 100 years ago, and efforts are being made by local historical societies to have the state purchase the property and restore the structure to its original condition.

The historic building stands on part of the original tract of 250 acres, which Boone's father purchased in 1759, and not far from the spot where his grandfather settled upon his arrival from England in 1717. It is well-removed from the beaten paths of travel, standing in a hollow which is screened in every direction by hills, about a mile to the east of the Schuylkill river.

HOUSE WAS A FORT.

The old house was constructed both as a home and as a protection against the Indians. The walls were very thick and built with the largest stones it was possible to use, while the windows were provided with portholes through which muskets could be fired. The house was erected over a rapidly-flowing spring in order that there might be an abundance of water in the event of a siege. When the Indians became troublesome the settlers for miles around gathered in the Boone house, where the savages feared to attack them.

Daniel Boone was born in 1733. He was a son of Squire Boone and his wife, Sarah Morgan. His grandfather, George Boone, emigrated with his wife, Mary, from Exeter, in Devonshire, England, in 1717. He was a member of the Society of Friends and followed Penn to the new world to escape religious persecution. He settled in what was then Philadelphia county, naming the region Exeter after his home in England.

George Boone became prominently identified with the Gwynedd Monthly Meeting by which he was appointed to keep the accounts of births and marriages of friends in the vicinity. In 1725 a monthly meeting was established for the Quakers in Oley, and in Dec. 21, 1736 George Boone and wife granted to Anthony Lee, John Webb and George Boone, his son, one acre of ground in trust for "a house for religious worship and place of burial for the use of the people called Quakers in Oley." This was the origin of what is known as the Exeter Monthly Meeting, where several generations of the Boone family have worshipped.

George Boone for many years was a justice of the peace under English sovereignty, an extensive land-owner and a man of affairs. He was a leader in the Society of Friends and had wide influence among his neighbors. He died in 1790, aged 78 years, and was buried in the Exeter burying grounds, as was also his wife. His Bible, now in possession of descendants, states that he left eight children, fifty-two grandchildren and ten great-grandchildren, in all seventy, "the number that Jacob took down to Egypt."

Squire Boone, his name bestowed upon him and was not an official title, had nine children, one of whom was Daniel the great Kentucky pioneer. Squire Boone sold his land in Pennsylvania in 1769, when Daniel was about 16 years old and removed to North Carolina. From that state, after he grew to manhood, his son Daniel, went over the mountains into Kentucky and entered upon his famous career as the explorer and pioneer settler of that state. Daniel married in North Carolina, Rebecca Bryan, whose family had accompanied the Boones from Pennsylvania. He started upon his western trip to Kentucky in 1769, crossing the Alleghenies with his wife and several companions, after suffering great privations.

SETTLED IN KENTUCKY.

After many fights with the Indians he succeeded in establishing a settlement on the Kentucky river, which he named Boonesboro. Here he became the father of a son, the first white child born on the soil of Kentucky. The following year he made a trip to Detroit for the purpose of obtaining salt and other much-needed necessities from the French, and was captured by Indians. He succeeded in making his escape single-handed by throwing salt into the eyes of

of his guards, and made his way back to Boonesboro in time to prepare a successful defense of the settlement.

On another occasion when he was captured by Indians he was absent from home so long that his family thought he had been killed, and returned to North Carolina. Boone followed them east and took them back to Kentucky. Owing to a defective title he lost all his lands in Kentucky after the territory had been well settled, and in 1793 he removed to the banks of the Osage river in Missouri. There he also lost his lands when that territory was ceded to the United States by France, and he died at Claiborne village, in Missouri, about 1820, in poverty.

Some time after he had settled in Missouri Boone paid a visit to his old home in Pennsylvania. According to an old family record this was on October 29, 1781, while the Revolution was in progress. He made a second visit on Feb. 12, 1788, when he brought his wife and his son, Nathan, with him. On each of these visits he expressed a desire to return to the old homestead.

An interesting part of the old house in Exeter is an old-fashioned fireplace the mantel for which was furnished by one of the earliest charcoal furnaces in Pennsylvania. When the present building was erected the old fireplace was allowed to remain. On the mantelpiece surmounting it are two marks which, according to a tradition, were etched by Boone in his youth to record his height when the family removed to North Carolina.

One of the most interesting relics on the old property is an enormous water-bush tree which towers high above the roof at the western end of the building, where the waters of the spring gushed from the cellar to join the river. Tradition has it that this tree was planted 173 years ago by Boone's father on the day that Daniel was born. The tree, watered by the spring which induced the Boones to settle on the spot, is pronounced by experts as one of the largest and most remarkable of its kind in existence.

Many of the important features of the original building have been saved to posterity. The cellar in which the spring rises is a splendid example of the substantial character of the old colonial buildings. The floor is entirely of stone, while the walls and high ceiling suggest strength at every point. The entire place abounds in historic interest and is surrounded with beautiful landscape.

The old Exeter meeting house stands in very much the same condition as in the days of Boone's youth, and is one of the oldest buildings in the state outside the city. It stands on high ground ground little more than a mile from the Boone house. To one side is the quiet burying ground where the remains of the early Quaker settlers of the valley lie buried. In keeping with the Quaker custom, which prohibits markers on the graves, there are no grave-stones in the cemetery. The place is very well preserved and has been remarkably free from relic hunters.

The Work a Watch Does.

It is a matter of everyday occurrence for a person to say to his watch-maker: "Here is a watch which you sold me some ten years ago. It has always gone well all just lately, when it has taken to stopping without any apparent cause."

The people who speak in this way little think of the amount of work a watch has performed in this space of time and might be astonished at the following figures:

In ten years, which includes two leap years, and consequently a total of 3,652 days, the hour hand has made 7,304 and the minute hand 87,648 revolutions. The end of an average minute hand travels more than 19,829 yards—more than six miles. The second hand has made 5,253,880 revolutions, and its extremity has traversed on the dial a distance upward of 123 miles. The escape wheel has made 52,538,800 revolutions, and as it has 15 teeth, it has come 788,082,000 times in contact with each pallet. The balance has made 1,577,644,000 vibrations, and any point on the outside of the rim has covered a distance of about 50,000 miles, and that is equal to twice the circumference of the earth.—Answers.

Taming of Rodney

When Rodney was 18 and developed such a violent and romantic passion for the blond little girl in the corner candy shop his fond parents sat up nights holding their distracted heads and bemoaning Rodney's fate, for they were positive that matrimony, and perhaps an elopement, would crown the affair.

The little candy girl thought so too, for when Rodney of a sudden calmly announced that everything was over between them she talked of a breach of promise suit after she had finished weeping and asking why he didn't love her any more. To the latter query Rodney had bent a studious mind and had finally delivered the verdict that he was blessed if he knew. Apparently his affections came and went with the wind.

After that followed love affairs with a long series of girls. Finally Rodney's family became so accustomed to this sentimental state that they went right on with their usual three meals a day and paid no attention to it. If Rodney was not at the point where he had at last found the girl of his heart and everything was settled he was at the next point where of a sudden he had decided that it was all a mistake and he did not really care for that particular girl.

Finally he met Stella. She had paused for a few days in the city on her way to her home in San Francisco or Seattle or Reno or some point in the distant west. Rodney instantly fell a victim to her charms.

Stella was one of those girls who are so slim that you think them skinny until you observe that instead they are merely lithe and willowy. You think her only moderately good looking until you dissect her face and conclude that there never before were black eyes quite so big, skin quite so white and fine and lips so clearly cut. As for her slow smile—well, that was positively irresistible.

Rodney rushed out to San Francisco or Seattle or Reno or wherever it was, just two weeks after Stella left. He said he had business out there and he had. His business was to fall still more deeply in love with Stella. Soon there came a day when, loitering under the trellised arbor in her yard, he told her how he felt and that he wanted her to marry him.

There is no reason to blame Stella for liking him, because Rodney is eminently likable and his wooing had been spectacular and therefore attractive. She said yes—and Rodney departed on air, because he simply had to go back home.

The next morning Stella got a telegram from him, sent from the train on which he was speeding eastward. It read: "Consider it all a mistake and at an end. Am miserable. Will write."

By the time the startled Stella had got Rodney's explanatory letter and perused it and completely failed to understand it, Rodney had discovered to his alarm that he did not experience his usual elation, at being free from an entanglement. He had a heavy heart and a yearning which he finally figured out was a desire to see Stella again. He really loved her!

Expense not having to be considered by Rodney, he traveled back to the coast and metaphorically cast himself at Stella's feet. Stella smiled her slow, sweet smile, regarded him musingly and then practically summoned the gardener to sweep him out with the other rubbish. Rodney went and sat by the sea after that and meditated upon death and raved at himself. Stella regularly hung up the receiver whenever she found him on the phone, so after a while he returned home, a blighted being. Everybody knew he was a blighted being because he made no secret of it.

Stella was his only thought and his sole conversational topic, till finally his family struck. They told him to clear out and go and marry Stella by main force or else fall in love with some one else before he returned home. So he hunted up Stella.

Rodney was very much in earnest and very desperate and he made Stella listen. Incidentally she gathered his sentimental history from friends of hers who knew him well. But Stella was a wise girl and saw possibilities. "I'm going to take a chance that you mean what you say," Stella told him. "Anyhow I hope you do mean what you say, because I—well, I'm foolish enough to like you myself! I think I'll marry you after all."

"Today!" Rodney cried, jubilantly. "I should say not," said Stella, with decision. "I'm going to give myself six months to change my own mind." The six months during which Rodney was on pins and needles for fear she would suddenly and definitely throw him overboard did him a lot of good. He was a reformed character when his wedding day arrived. You would have thought that he had never known there was another girl on earth had you seen the way he gazed at his wife.

He isn't quite sure even yet that she won't change her mind.—Chicago Daily News.

Heart of a Child

"Have you any boys?"

I was accosted thus by a mite of a lad with dusty shoes and lunch box in hand at 4 o'clock, as I walked along a quiet country road. I was on my way to the postoffice half a mile distant. He was going home from school, I inferred from his box and the time of day.

Now, I have no boys, and I love boys, and I did not like to tell the truth about it and answer directly, so I fended. "Why, are you out looking for boys, laddie?" I smilingly questioned in return.

His blue eyes looked up into mine with the sweetest, shyest look from under the longest of curved lashes, and his little round freckled nose was tipped sideways in the friendliest way, while his lips began to draw down in proper shape to make a business reply. "Yes, ma'am, I have some tickets to sell. They're 10 cents, and you can see the ball game."

"Oh," said I. "Are you going?"

"No, I guess not. It's way down town, an the big boys are going to play, some from our own school."

"Oh, I see. And if you sell five, perhaps you could have a ticket for yourself," said I.

"Oh, yes, teacher said if any one sold five he could have a ticket free. But I don't guess I'll sell five—I don't know anybody 'at has five boys."

I became more interested. I didn't want to miss that ball game, and I wanted him to see it. So I thought I would try to get a boy. "Do you know of any boy I could get to take me to that ball game?" said I, with all the intensity I could put into my manner.

"Well, no ma'am, I don't know any just now—less Jim could go—he works for Mr. Ward next house to us," he said with such sweet concern, hoping to sell a ticket.

"But you see, I don't know Jim. I'd rather take some one I know, and we could both see the game. Now, I don't suppose you could take me, could you, if I bought the tickets and paid the street car fare and all? You see, I don't like to go alone, and I don't know any boys but you."

Downcast eyes fringed with black lashes gave a proper modesty to the eagerness of his reply. "Yes, ma'am, I think I could do it, if you'd like to see the game."

So the time and place of meeting was arranged, the two tickets paid for, and I went on my way to the post office. I was really happily excited.

That boy had awakened a feeling of youth in me that had been a stranger for some years. I wanted to see the ball game—I wanted a child's companionship—I was impatient for the appointed day.

My escort arrived early on Saturday, just as I finished my lunch, ringing the bell with a timid hand. I spied him through the window and went to the door myself. I did not want any one to come between our new and growing confidence. That shy lifting of the eyes greeted me, and I at once brought out Felix, my little terrier, who is friendly and a good entertainer. I left the two on the porch while I got my hat, gloves and my pink tickets.

When I returned, Felix had a new friend. "I like your dog," said "my boy." (I had never asked his name.) "You don't want to sell him, do you?" he asked in a truly business tone.

"No," said I, "he's my burglar alarm."

"Oh, course," said he. We boarded a car, and I was more delightfully entertained during that half hour than I had been for many a day.

"Pa said for me to be sure and thank you for my ride and the ticket, and I guess I better do it now. I might forget, you know, if I have a perfectly splendid time."

"Your papa is a gentleman, and you give him my best wishes for many happy returns of the day." He looked earnestly at me. "I guess I can't remember all that."

"Then tell him you did not forget," I said, and he was satisfied.

The excitement of passing the charmed ticket man and walking up that long road to the benches with his little warm hand in mine was delightful. My pulses beat with his, my eyes saw with his eyes, my feet kept time with his.

And then the game—how we did shout and wave our handkerchiefs, and stand up to get the best view! I was as merry as my boy of eight. I didn't want the game to come to an end—but alas! it did. We went home tired, but happy.

"Good-by," he said, at my gate. "Good-by, laddie," said I. "Come in and see Felix next Saturday."

"All right," he called, as his feet kicked up the dust in the road. I was alone with my thoughts. "And whose shall receive one such little child receiveth me?"

Banker (to his daughter's suitor)—Please tell me frankly. Are you marrying my Selma for her money?

Banker—Yet you're quite willing to take the hindrance, I suppose?—Fleegande Blaetter.

Housework Drudgery!

Housework is drudgery for the weak woman. "She brushes, dusts and scrubs, or is on her feet all day attending to the many details of the household, her back aching, her temples throbbing, nerves quivering under the strain of pain, possibly dizzy feelings. Sometimes rest is not refreshing, because the poor tired nerves do not permit of refreshing sleep. This real need of weak, nervous women is satisfied by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and as Mrs. Briggs and others testify: It Makes Weak Women Strong and Sick Women Well.

This "Prescription" removes the cause of women's weakness, heals inflammation and discharges, it strengthens the nerves, encourages the appetite and induces peaceful sleep.

Mrs. Briggs.

Dr. Pierce is perfectly willing to let every one know what his "Favorite Prescription" contains, a complete list of ingredients on the bottle wrapper. Do not let any druggist persuade you that his unknown composition is "just as good" in order that he may make a bigger profit.

Mrs. BRIGGS, Denver, of 229 N. Washington St., Delphos, Ohio, writes: "Having taken your 'Favorite Prescription' for a bad case of irregular disease and constipation with women's ailments, for which I was almost unable to do anything, I think I am safe in saying that there are no remedies in the world like Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and 'Purifying Laxative Tablets.' I am now enjoying the best of health, and thank Dr. Pierce for his wonderful medicines which have done me a world of good."

KENTUCKY SOLDIER BOYS

Would Benefit by Pay Bill In Congress.

Argument Made That Young Men Often Sacrifice to Serve.

Washington, August 5.—A total of 1,911 citizens of Kentucky, composing the State's militia as shown by the last annual inspection, will be put on the Federal pay-rolls if the militia pay bill, which has just been favorably reported by the House Committee on Military Affairs, becomes a law, and there is every indication that it will in due course of time.

The last inspection gave the strength of the Kentucky organized militia as follows: Officers, 143; enlisted men, 1,768. This was a loss of eighteen officers and 188 enlisted men, as compared with the previous annual inspection.

The total amount which the Kentucky militia would draw annually from the Federal treasury, if its strength remained in statu quo and all of its members conformed to the requirements as to attendance, participation in drills, etc., would be $145,416.

The pay granted by the government to militia officers, under the bill, varies from five to fifteen per cent of the pay received by officers of similar rank in the regular army. A militia Colonel gets five per cent of the pay of a regular army Colonel. This amounts to $200 per year. Regimental quartermasters and adjutants receive fifteen per cent of the pay of similar officers in the regular service, which is equivalent to $360 per annum.

All enlisted men are to be paid twenty-five per cent, or one-fourth, of the pay of enlisted men in the same branches of the regular army service. This varies from $45 to $225 per year. Master signal electricians and chief musicians in regimental bands will receive the highest amount awarded enlisted men, $225 per annum. The private in a band will get $72 per annum, the private in the hospital corps $48, the private of artillery $45, etc.

In a statement just presented to Congress in support of the plan to put militiamen of the several States on the Government's pay roll the Committee on Military Affairs says:

"The personnel of a few of the organizations of the National Guard are men of means, who go into the service for the love of it, and they can well afford the time required, and the expense involved is of no consequence to them. But the great majority of the officers and men who compose the National Guard are now giving their services at a financial sacrifice. Most of the enlisted men give up their summer vacation to attend camp. Attendance at drills and target practice often involves car fare, or being absent from home for a week, the expense of which must generally be met by the soldier.

"One of the objects of this bill is to pay the officers and enlisted men sums according to the duties required of them, so that a man can serve without financial sacrifice, and in order that the National Guard may have the services of a large number of fine young men throughout the country who cannot now join the National Guard on account of the many financial obligations which must be met by the individual. The fact is that the National Guard is hardly holding its own, and the report of strength for last year shows a net decrease of 1,572.

"In order to maintain the standard of efficiency now required in the National Guard, which must be insisted upon if the National Guard is to be considered a dependable force, an enlisted man must attend regular instruction in the army, including gallery practice, target practice on the range, and finally from five to ten days in camp service for instruction. The law requires attendance at not less than twenty-four drills and at least five days spent in camp service for instruction, but the present state of efficiency demanded by the Federal Government cannot be reached or maintained without devoting additional time, especially on the part of the officers.

"To increase the efficiency of officers camps have been inaugurated in addition to the minimum requirements of the law. In these camps officers are assembled and undergo a course of instruction which has been prepared in advance for them by officers of the regular army. These camps are sometimes held at regular army posts, in order that the student officers may be given every opportunity to pursue a practical course. Special training must be given mounted organizations and special and auxiliary troops, in order to render them even moderately efficient.

"If the citizen soldier is to be used in war service he must be trained, or else we must face the frightful loss of life due to imperfect training in the early stages of war. Economy, as well as humanity, therefore, demands that this training should be accomplished in time of peace."

A Nervous Woman Finds Relief After Many Years

Women who suffer from extreme nervousness, often endure much suffering before finding any relief. Mrs. Daniel Kintner, of Defiance, O., had such an experience, regarding which she says:

"I had stomach trouble when I was eighteen years old that broke down my health, and for years I suffered with nervousness, headache, indigestion and nervous spasms. The spasms got so bad I would have them three or four times a week. After trying nearly every remedy recommended, I began taking Dr. Miles' Nervine, and I must say it helped me wonderfully. I have had no severe nervousness for several years."

MRS. DAN KINTNER,
1002 Pleasant St., Defiance, O.

Many remedies are recommended for diseases of the nervous system that fail to produce results because they do not reach the seat of the trouble. Dr. Miles' Nervine has proven its value in such cases so many times that it is unnecessary to make claims for it. You can prove its merits for yourself by getting a bottle of your druggist, who will return the price if you receive no benefit.

BILL WOULD HELP THE STATE

Measure Would Give $100-000 to Kentucky.

The Committee Is Expected to
Favorably Report the Bill
This Session.

Washington, Aug. 5.—Statistics have been prepared in connection with the Smith-Lever bill, which provides for Federal aid to agriculture in the various states, and the measure is expected to be reported out in the house before this session of Congress adjourns. This measure is of especial interest to the south. It provides for an unconditional appropriation of $10,000 for each state, with which to start the work. This sum is to be continued each year. The additional sum of $300,000 is to be paid in the year 1914, and an annual increase of this appropriation of $50,000 a year, over the preceding year, for a period of nine years, is provided, until the total amount of additional appropriations will be the sum of $1,000,000 annually.

These additional appropriations will be allotted among the several states in the proportion which their rural population bears to the total rural population of the United States, as determined by the next preceding Federal census. Under this distribution Kentucky, when the act shall mature at the end of ten years, will get $105,000 annually, to which must be added the $10,000 which goes to each state unconditionally. A table prepared gives the total rural population of Kentucky as 1,731,883. According to these same figures, Kentucky has 3.51 per cent of the total rural population of the United States.

Indiana, by the same table, is given 3.16 per cent of the total population of the United States, and it would receive annually $91,800, in addition to the unconditional $10,000 annually.

The plan of the bill is to have agriculture taught by extension work of the various state colleges through the medium of practical demonstrations in agriculture and home economics, through field demonstrations, publications and otherwise.

"Were all medicines as meritorious as Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy the world would be much better off and the percentage of suffering greatly decreased," writes Land-say Scott, of Temple, Ind. For sale by all Dealers.

Is the Use of Tobacco Immoral?

The Methodist Episcopal Church in this country has repeatedly declared its unwillingness to ordain a man to preach the Gospel who uses tobacco in any form. But the Methodist Church in Canada has taken a more practical position on that subject. A note in the columns of the "Advance" (Chicago) reads as follows: "The Methodist Church in Canada has taken a grand stand against its members who grow tobacco for a living. Methodist farmers in the rich tobacco-growing lands of Essex county, just across the river from Detroit, who continue to cultivate the plant, will do so in the face of the 'uncompromising opposition' of the governing body of their Church. The question was raised some time ago by church members in the adjoining county of Kent. It was passed on to the governing body of the Church, and was one of the five topics of the annual conference at St. Thomas, Ontario. The result of the discussion was the adoption of a clause in the report of the temperance and moral reform committee, recording the uncompromising opposition of the Church to the cultivation of tobacco and calling upon church members not only to abstain from the industry, but to use every effort to bring about its ultimate complete cessation."—Christian Observer.

It is mighty easy to become morbid and to worry over trifles. One of the easiest ways to become morbid is to allow yourself to become bilious and a good way to become bilious is to eat too much fried chicken with cream gravy.

Opposition to tobacco is always traceable to excess in the use of fried chicken and cream gravy because when a man is bilious from this form of intemperance his tobacco doesn't taste right and it is human nature to try to keep others from using what you are unable to enjoy.

When a good man is bilious it is hard for him to see good in anything and he nearly always takes his spite out on something that gives pleasure to others.

The proper thing for such a good brother to do is to eat less chicken and take more calomel. This course of treatment is certain to give him a brighter outlook on life and may even cause him to say "Live and let live." The chickens, at least, would be glad to hear him say that much.

For our part we like chicken and tobacco too. We do not see any sin in eating chicken occasionally and in moderation and we surely do like to use our good old pipe in meditating over the troubles that are created by morbid folks who do not soothe themselves with the gentle companionship of "My Lady Nicotine."

The indictment against tobacco is that its use is harmful to the nervous system, but we believe that the nervous system demands something in the way of a narcotic or stimulant and that the temperate use of tobacco does a great deal more good than harm. At any rate, it is a great deal safer than some of the drugged "nerve tonics" that are on the market and have such a good sale among those who think it sinful to pull at a pipe.

You can be sure of one thing, and that is, whenever you hear a fellow attacking the use of tobacco, he is certain to tell you the very interesting zoological fact that one drop of nicotine will kill a cat. That is tough on the cat, but why should it have any bearings on the use of tobacco by men?

If a man is to be guided by the effects of different diets on animals he will not last long.

A dog can be bitten by a rattlesnake and then he can eat the rattlesnake raw and enjoy the feast without harm to himself. But this is no reason why a man should think he could do likewise.

But it is a safe prediction that there will be no attempt to pass a law against the use of tobacco. Fights of this kind are always against manufacture and never against the use.—Our Country.

FRIDAY, AUGUST 9.

PROGRESSIVE TICKET.

For President,
THEODORE ROOSEVELT.
For Vice President,
GOV. HIRAM JOHNSON.

The only tariff which is a tax is the one levied "for revenue only."

The ladies who belong to the Progressive party are called Mooseess.

The Louisville Times is supporting Taft and Wilson for President.

Wonder if the Kentucky Taft Committee will attempt to destroy all the pictures of Roosevelt during the campaign.

The very pictures of honest men seem to disturb the peace of mind of members of the Bradley-Franks-McCulloch Committee.

Kentucky is seething with Progressives and the prediction is freely made that Col. Roosevelt has a good chance to carry the State in November.

East Hartford precinct which has cast as high as 200 votes gave 1 vote in the primary election last Saturday, and he is not going to vote for Taft in November.

Read the note of alarm sounded by the Cincinnati Enquirer. It has quit trying to laugh Roosevelt and the new party out. So it is. Those who came to scoff remained to pray.

"We appeal to the American people to support us in our demand for a Tariff for revenue only."—Democratic platform. That spells more than low wages, closed factories, soup-houses and ruinous prices for farm products.—Lawrenceville (Ind.) Republican.

We could not all have our way about the school bond question, but there should be no difference of opinion when we say Hartford can and should have a great school. Let us all work together to that end. There is no reason why any graduate from the common schools in Ohio county should go out of the county to attend school until completing the course at Hartford College, which with a new and up-to-date building will be greater and better than ever.

At a meeting of the McCulloch-Franks State Central Committee at Louisville this week, at the suggestion of E. T. Franks, the pictures of Col. Roosevelt, T. L. Walker and C. M. Barnett, former State Chairman of the late Republican party, were ordered removed from the headquarters. As far as the writer is concerned this is a favor which he feels will be the pride of his grand-children. It is not often one gets such conspicuous notice for simply refusing to endorse theft or to follow a gang of thieves.

Gov. Wilson is backing on the tariff question. He now says it will not do to lower duties too fast or too much. In other words he believes in cutting off the dog's tail inch at a time, to keep from hurting the dog. If however, the tariff is robbery, as we have so often been told by Democratic speakers and papers, why prolong it? Would you deal in this manner with any other stealing? The Democratic candidate for President is reported to have said, if a certain schedule needs lowering thirty per cent, he would lower it fifteen per cent this year and fifteen per cent some other year. That is one way to stop stealing.

Looks like the Kentucky Taft State Committee would have to spend the campaign filling vacancies in Electors and County Committees. In some sections it will be difficult to find commission men as there are precincts in the State in which there are no Taft supporters. Ohio county is a fair sample of conditions. At the recent primary only 22 votes were cast for both Republican candidates for Congress. Thompson was known to be a strong supporter of Taft. In fact he went to Elizabethtown and helped to steal the vote of Washington county for the Taft forces. In Ohio county he received only 142 votes to 140 for Whitingshall who supported Roosevelt at the April convention. Roosevelt men in Ohio county refused to vote in the primary and out of a vote of 3,300 only 232 were polled, notwithstanding a contest was on and both candidates had been here to solicit votes.

In the school bond election here Tuesday the ladies voted for the first time. For many years widows and spinsters have had the right to vote upon school tax questions, but the last legislature extended that right to all women who are of legal age, on the same footing as men. The ladies of Hartford availed themselves of their new privilege in large numbers. In fact they outvoted the men 102 to 196, but their votes did not change the result. It was funny to watch them in the exercise of their new right, which most of them enjoyed to the extreme, no matter how much they protested that they didn't want to vote and had to be persuaded by "hubby" or some less hopeful female friend. They almost invariably stood back after the ordeal was over, in an expectant mood, with an expression of "is that all," or "it's too easy to be true." We have always contended that female suffrage would not change the result on any question submitted to the people and we have never learned of a case where it did. Even on the question of local option wherever submitted in states in which women have the right to vote the liquor forces have won out. Nevertheless it looks like it is coming in the United States but we do not believe it is sincerely desired by a majority of women.

How a Tariff for Revenue Works.

Imports of all kinds in the twelve months ending June 30, 1912, amounted to $1,633,426,174, of which $881,743,141 were free of duty, while less than half, or $771,683,030, were dutiable and competitive articles. Should the Tariff-for-revenue policy prevail, and the rates of duty be lowered, the dutiable imports would have to increase in quantity to keep the revenue where it now is; and the lower the duties the greater would have to be the volume of imports in order to maintain the revenue. Now it would seem clear that the present policy of getting an average of about 41 per cent on $771,683,030 worth of dutiable imports, or considerably more than $300,000,000 of revenue, is a better policy than that of reducing the duty to, say, a 20 per cent average and being compelled to double the importation of competitive merchandise in order to get that $300,000,000 of revenue. In the latter case we should have to import more than $1,500,000,000 a year of foreign merchandise that would take the place of a good deal more than a billion and a half of domestic production. Think this over and see whether a Protective Tariff on $771,000,000 of imports is not better than a revenue Tariff on a billion and a half dollars' worth of foreign-made goods.

HANDS JOINED FOR THE PEOPLE

Roosevelt and Johnson
Head Ticket.

Third Party Formally Christened "The Progressive Party."

Chicago, Aug. 7.—Singing "Onward Christian Soldiers," and the "Battle Hymn of the Republic," delegates to the first national convention of the new Progressive party tonight acclaimed Col. Theodore Roosevelt of New York, as their candidate for President, and Gov. Hiram W. Johnson, of California, as their choice for Vice-President.

Marking a new departure in the proceedings of national conventions, the two delegates immediately were formally notified of their nomination and amid deafening cheers appeared before the delegates to voice their acceptance and to pledge their best efforts to the coming campaign.

For several hours during the afternoon and early evening, the big throng in the Coliseum had listened to a flow of oratory in nominating and seconding speeches in which the dominant note expressed was the belief that victory would come to the new party in the November elections. Raymond Robbins, of Illinois, pledged a 100 per cent majority for the national ticket in Illinois, and Gifford Pinchot predicted a 300,000 majority for Col. Roosevelt and Gov. Johnson in his home State of Pennsylvania. These statements were cheered to the echo.

The party formally christened itself "The Progressive Party," leaving out the prefix "national" by which it has heretofore been known, but provision was made for the recognition of "real" Progressives in any of the States by whatever name they should be locally designated because of State laws.

The convention adjourned at 7:24 p. m., with the delegates singing the "Doxology" in lusty voice. During the three days it was in session there was not a single roll call, nor a ballot taken.

The delegates asked no such formalities either in passing their candidates in nomination or in voting for them.

There was not a voice of opposition either to Col. Roosevelt or Gov. Johnson. The delay in nominating them was due to the large number of seconding speeches allowed.

As has always been the case in national political conventions, the bulk of the work of the Progressive gathering was carried on in the committees. The only semblance of a conflict of opinion on the floor was a brief debate today as to whether an hour's recess should be taken. The point was not material, but as one delegate expressed it, "we just had to fight about something to make it a real convention."

There was sharp discussion, however, in several of the committee meetings and no little trouble in unseating on the platform as adopted.

Col. Roosevelt worked with the subcommittee in charge of the platform until late this afternoon, going over their work of the two previous days and nights, and vigorously helping to mould the draft which at last proved acceptable to him. The platform did not take up the negro question.

In this connection one of the interesting seconding speeches of the day was that of F. R. Glead, of New York, a negro. Glead declared that the negroes have faith in the new party; that it would do all in its power to right the wrongs of the race.

"We stand by the platform," he said. "We stand by Col. Roosevelt's letter; we stand by his speech. And as we stood by him at San Juan Hill so will we stand by him in November and fight for victory."

Miss Jane Adams, of Hull House, Chicago, was among those who seconded Col. Roosevelt and she was enthusiastically greeted. The new party formally placed itself on record as favoring equal suffrage, and further recognized the suffragette movement by providing for four women members at large on the National Committee.

No Democratic Walkover.

The fact that the Republican party has split naturally brings confidence to the Democrats of the country as to their winning the election in November.

For two months prior to the Baltimore convention it was quite evident that the divisions among the Republicans were adding the chances for a Democratic victory, and when that convention met every member of it felt that success was very probable in the campaign.

For one month now the Republican factions have been doing better service for the Democratic party than the most zealous Democrats could do for it, and it has possibly been good policy for the Democrats throughout the country to allow the row in the ranks of their opponents to proceed to a finish without interference and to have it end in the full organization of a new third party.

Democrats, however, should not be overconfident of the result in November, for this is sure to be a campaign with kaleidoscopic changes and startling alliances.

There may be no choice in the Electoral College as selected in November.

There may be local divisions among the Democrats in some states almost essential to success that may affect the electoral votes of those states, and in these days of independent voting and of three parties to arrange combinations with independent or dissatisfied voters, situations may be changed with surprising rapidity.

In 1888 it was the last 48 hours' work of Chairman Quay, of the Republican National Committee, that gave Benjamin Harrison the 36 electoral votes of New York and thereby defeated Grover Cleveland, who would have been elected if he had carried his own state.

The regular Republican organization, as was proved last June in Chicago, is under command of experienced, aggressive, skilled, artistically effective leaders, men who only seek results, not arguments or explanations, and Colonel Roosevelt has always risen to meet every political difficulty that has blocked his progress.

He is a living example of the Roman spirit, "to find a way or make it," and that he is to enter the field as a candidate for the Presidency means a fierce campaign, a complicated canvass, and if this bodes no good to the Republican ticket, it carries no comfort to Democratic Electors, who can be defeated by those named to support the Colonel.

Four weeks have passed since the Democratic candidates were named at Baltimore, but if the leaders of the party have done more than to rejoice at Republican differences their work is not apparent to the public.

This campaign is to be no walkover for the Democratic party, and it is not wise politics to rely upon weakness in the opposition ranks.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

The ad, as it appeared in the Pittsburg paper, follows:

"WANTED—A chance to make good; an inmate of Kentucky branch prison, convicted of forgery, I may be released on parole on condition that I secure a position. Am a good office man and can hold down a job of any sort where brains and intelligence are required. For the last eighteen months have had charge of cutting department of shirt contract, and can fill similar position in any factory.

Referring to his incarceration in Eddyville the writer says:

"Out of these years of bitter experience I have learned that nothing in the way of success is worth while except truth and right living."

The letter further says: "I have entered upon the last lap of my term of imprisonment," said the letter, "and now the future which has been a vague, distant thing, has given way to keen plans of employment."

"To be sure I have forfeited the respect of my former friends and cannot apply to them for assistance. Fifteen years of reflection and solitude have not been without gain. I have full confidence in myself and in my ability to succeed. The first foothold, hence the rub. It is necessary for me to gain the interest of some one who is willing to put faith in the word of a convict."

Burglar Goes into Kitchen.

Mr. C. I. Maxey and family, who live near Beaver Dam, and on the pike, had rather an unusual experience Monday night about 10 o'clock. Late Monday afternoon a man, driving a gray horse hitched to a small covered wagon, asked to stay all night at the Maxey residence, but owing to his doubtful looking appearance, he was turned away. That night at the time mentioned, Mr. Maxey's son was returning home from Beaver Dam, and upon reaching the house noticed a light in the kitchen. He knew something was wrong, and called to his parents, about the light. At that moment it was extinguished, and the young man ran into the kitchen with his shot gun, only to hear some one running away. He fired into that direction which no doubt frightened the unwelcome guest. Mr. Maxey found that the screen door had been cut so the latch could be unfastened and the man had left a sack in the room when he left so unceremoniously. Mr. Maxey also found his pants, which were on a chair at the side of his bed, had been searched but nothing was missing. It is not known who the guilty person is, but strong suspicion rests upon the man who wanted lodging early in the evening.

Bond Issue Carried.

The agitation called by the Board of Education of Hartford to decide whether or not bonds not to exceed $9,000 should be issued to assist in building a new high school building to replace the structure, which was destroyed by fire some weeks ago, was held at the college campus Tuesday from 12 to 6 o'clock. The vote resulted 293 for the bonds and 105 against. While it required two-thirds of the votes to carry the issue, yet it carried splendidly. Great interest was manifested in the election and the voters were variously divided upon the subject. This was the first time that the women had an opportunity to vote and many were brought to the polls in carriages and automobiles. There are now about $10,000 already in the treasury and this will also be used in erecting the new building. It is said that the entire amount of the bond issue will not be used.

FAILED TO MEET

THE LIVE ISSUES

Roosevelt's Comment On the Speech of Taft Accepting Nomination.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Aug. 2.—President Taft failed, said Col. Roosevelt today to meet the live issues in his speech accepting the Republican Presidential nomination. The President confined himself to conservative utterances upon general questions, Col. Roosevelt contended, and seemed to be afraid to commit himself upon the questions of the hour, such as the collection of tolls on the Panama canal.

The Colonel said he was amused by many of the President's remarks, such as his statement that constitutional amendments are not work and that reformers do not pay rent. He believed that the speech was a negative, conservative document which failed to catch the spirit of the times.

Col. Roosevelt's "confession of faith" to be made in Chicago next week is a speech in which he says he takes more interest than any other he has ever delivered. He was told that Senator Dixon had suggested a time later than Monday night, which the Colonel had selected, for its delivery.

Col. Roosevelt said he wished to make his speech as early as convenient and would insist upon delivering it before the National Progressive platform was drafted. His proposals he believes may be regarded as ultra radical in some quarters, and if the National Progressive convention is to nominate him and adopt a platform to go with the ticket, he wishes to have his views known in detail before hand, so that the convention may act in the light of full knowledge of his position.

In the past as a member of the Republican party, he said, he had felt that he must shape his personal utterances to conform with the position of the party. With this restraint removed, he will father measures which, he feels, may give his supporters a new conception of his position. It is expected that Col. Roosevelt's speech will be of much influence in shaping the new party's platform, and if its principle provisions are incorporated the speech will be printed in pamphlet form and distributed broadcast over the country as a campaign textbook.

Col. Roosevelt said that he did not expect to have any more councils of war at Sagamore Hill before going to Chicago on Sunday. Most of the men associated with him in the new movement, he said, are now on their way to Chicago, and it is the Colonel's intention to devote the remaining period to his family and to outdoor recreation.

CENTERTOWN WOMAN THRASHES HUSBAND

Pastor of Methodist Church Gives up Charge—Wife Goes to Louisville.

The Owensboro Messenger of Wednesday said:

Rev. N. O. Watson, pastor of the Methodist church at Centertown, suddenly gave up his charge last week and left for parts unknown to his wife and the majority of the members of his congregation.

It is stated that domestic troubles of a rather serious nature caused the minister to disappear between the setting and rising of the sun. Mrs. Watson, according to her neighbors, is a rather corpulent woman, weighing in the neighborhood of 180 pounds. Her husband is said to tip the scales at about 135 pounds. It is also stated by the neighbors in the Centertown vicinity that the minister of the gospel seemed to be very unhappy, his domestic relations being rather strained at all times. In addition to the Centertown church he had several other charges in that section. It is said that his wife always insisted on accompanying him to the different churches. They had four children, the oldest being about eleven years of age and the youngest two years. They generally left the two oldest children with neighbors when they went on trips.

A minister is authority for the statement that the straw that broke all family relations was when the wife took it upon herself to administer a rather severe thrashing to her lightweight husband. Then it was that he decided to seek other fields for his labors. He went to Rockport, Ky., and caught a fast Illinois Central train, one that runs about sixty miles an hour, and was hurried away to a place of peace and safety.

Since leaving the charge, it is understood that the Rev. Mr. Watson has communicated with the presiding elder of the district, the Rev. S. J. Thompson, of Owensboro, telling him that it would be necessary to secure another minister to take charge of the Centertown church. The presiding elder has placed the Rev. C. F. Allen in charge of the church.

Friends of Rev. Mr. Watson speak of him in the highest terms, saying that he has, under the circumstances, accomplished much good. He was sent to the Centertown church from Louisville at the last Methodist conference. His wife, after ascertaining that her husband had left for parts unknown, decided that she would return to the Kentucky metropolis, and left with her four children for Louisville.

How Presidents and Vice Presidents Are Elected.

The voters of the union do not vote directly for president and vice president.

Each state provides for the choosing of electors, and each state is entitled to elect one elector for each or for each congressional representative the state is entitled to, and also two electors at large from each state, and it is these electors that are voted for by the citizens of the respective states.

The candidates for electors are nominated under state laws in some states, and in others states under party rules or regulations. State laws, or state party rules, or the naming of the electors in every state in the union.

The legal number of electors the state is entitled to, receiving the highest number of votes at the presidential election in November, become the electors of the state and form the electoral college of the state. There is no law compelling the electors to vote for the candidates for president of vice president who are named upon the ticket or tickets.

Article XII of the Federal constitutional amendments, declared in force September 25, 1914, provides as follows:

"First—The electors shall meet in their respective states and vote, by ballot, for president and vice president, one of whom at least shall not be an inhabitant of the same state with themselves.

"They shall name in their ballots the person voted for as president, and in distinct ballots the person voted for as vice president; and they shall make distinct lists of all voted for as president, and all persons voted for as vice president, and of the number of votes for each; which lists they shall sign, certify and transmit sealed to the seat of the government of the president of the senate.

"The president of the senate shall, in the presence of the senate and house of representatives, open all the certificates and the votes shall then be counted.

"The person having the greatest number of votes for president shall be the president, if such number be a majority of the whole number of electors appointed; and if no person have such majority, then from the persons having the highest number not exceeding three, on the list of those voted for as president, the house of representatives shall choose immediately, by ballot, the president.

"But in choosing the president the votes shall be taken by states, the representation from each state having one vote; a quorum for this purpose shall consist of a member or members from two thirds of the states and a majority of all the states shall be necessary to choose.

"And if the house of representatives shall not choose a president whenever the right of choice shall devolve upon them, before the 4th day of March next following then the vice president shall act as president, as in the case of the death or other constitutional disability of the president.

"Second—The person having the greatest number of votes as vice president shall be the vice president, as such number be a majority of the whole number of electors appointed, and if no person have a majority, then from the two highest numbers on the list the senate shall choose the vice president.

"A quorum for the purpose shall consist of two thirds of the whole number of senators, and a majority of the whole number shall be necessary to a choice.

In case of the removal, death, resignation or inability of both the president and vice president, the presidential succession act, passed by the Forty-ninth congress in 1886, provides that the secretary of state shall act as president until the disability of the president or vice president is removed, or a president is elected.

If there be no secretary of state, then the secretary shall act; and the order of succession is: Secretary of war, attorney general, postmaster general, secretary of the navy and the secretary of the interior.

This act applies only to such cabinet officers as shall have been appointed by the consent of the senate, and are eligible under the constitution to the presidency.

Upon taking office the acting president must convene congress, if it is not at that time in session, in extraordinary session, giving notice of 20 days.

The electoral colleges of the several states meet on the first Wednesday of December after the presidential election. The congress meets in joint session to count the votes on the second Wednesday of the February following.
